

What MEDIA is right for YOU?

<h2>DIRECT MAIL</h2>		<h2>PRESS</h2>
Why? Allows you to personalise your communications and directly target the right people Mailing lists are now readily available to help support your own database Detailed information and descriptions can be portrayed here	Why Not? DM can be seen as junk mail these days, but if the piece is innovative and clever, you can overcome this perception Print costs and postage can be expensive 	Why? There are now many business and trade/industry publications out there, so there is plenty of choice to make an appropriate selection Circulation figures are available, allowing an informed decision Depending on the publication, colour or b&amp;w are possible	Why Not? Not all press is suitable e.g. who are you targeting and what press do they read?  Advertising can be expensive and is one of the hardest tools to get a response from Local press has a short lead time, but nationals need more notice
<h2>PR</h2>		<h2>SALES PROMOTION</h2>
Why? Editorials and features are a good way to get a message across. They give the author credibility and help to raise your and your businesses profile The press are always interested in news and stories, so submitting newsworthy press releases will help to get your name out there and to raise awareness	Why Not? Quite often, the press will only print editorials when accompanied by advertising PR is great for raising awareness, but it is a more slow burning tactic so don't expect immediate results	Why? If you need to incentivise customers to buy more or to try a new range, promotions work well e.g. offer buy one get one free or a discounted introductory price	Why Not? Sales promotions are not applicable to all business types
<h2>ONLINE</h2>		<h2>EMAIL CAMPAIGNS</h2>
Why? Websites are so popular these days. Whether it be your own company site or linking up to other's sites, the options are endless Material given can be lengthy and detailed and it can include photos, videos, downloads and so on	Why Not? Everyone has a website now, so yours will need to stand out	Why? Personalised emails can work very well in communicating to your customers Suitable for consumers &amp; businesses Use for 2-way communications Email newsletters are a great way to communicate to new customers as well as	Why Not? With recent EC directives, the need to be careful with unsolicited emails and opt-ins is key  With many companies sending out emails, be

The advancement of SEO allows customers to find you using keywords Social media is an online tool. It is low cost to set up and maintain and quite simply, everyone is on one form of social media at least. The main profiles to choose from (depending on your audience and demographics are Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter and Instagram)	Customers won't find your website by chance, so you will need to lead them there e.g. SEO You may also need to invest in PPC which will require effort and additional budget Everyone is on social media now, so your profiles and posts will need to stand out	communicating to existing customers.	mindful of SPAM

-----------------------------	-------------------------------

Why? If you have an out of date database or if you want to qualify a data set before using it to email or post to, telemarketing is a good way of doing this Employ a telemarketing company to make your calls. They have the right patter, they know when to call and so on	Why Not? Cold calling is hard to do and does not come naturally to people. Use an expert to increase the chance of success People now, especially business to consumers, see telemarketing as annoying and they often dismiss any such calls. Business to business has a better reputation	Why? The options here are endless from advertising on a bus, on the back of a toilet door in a restaurant or on train tickets or posters They are very visible, especially if they are placed at a key location where people stop e.g. traffic lights, waiting rooms, platforms etc	Why Not? Posters can be expensive to place, especially in key locations Posters need to be seen a lot, so you would need to book up the space for a number of weeks

--------------------------	---------------------------

Why? Networking today includes face to face as well as social networking Online sites such as Facebook and Twitter are great ways to boost your website's rankings and keeping customers updated People buy from people and WOM and personal recommendations are vital These sessions are great to learn from and	Why Not? Be careful to keep your profiles or blogs business like. Don't mix your profiles. Some networking events can be expensive and regular, so don't over commit or overspend 	Why? Where the advert is placed can be selective in terms of which paper or website, what position, the length and so on Adverts can be a great way to portray a message or a promotion If you buy a series of adverts, you can often negotiate a discount	Why Not? Advertising can be expensive and is one of the hardest tools to get a response from Advertising really needs to be in a series of adverts as opposed to a one off advert which won't have much if any response

to project to a captive audience	Join groups that are relevant
TELEVISION		RADIO
Why? Almost everyone watches television, so you have a captive audience Where you advertise can be placed selectively according to location, channels, programme type etc If you need to demo a product, television is very good	Why Not? This is very expensive and the message air time is short To ensure customers see your message, you will need to advertise regularly for a short time or drip feed the message With Sky+, videos etc, do people really watch the adverts anymore?	Why? Where you advertise can be placed selectively according to location, channels, programme type etc If you need to demo a product, television is very good Radio, on a local level, is not as expensive as it used to be	Why Not? If you are targeting businesses, do they have the radio on during the day in places such as offices? The message air time can be short As customers are only listening, they cannot see anything or feel/touch anything

Whether you have a limited budget or limited time, consider each of the Marketing media available to you and your product and campaign. Don't forget, it is not always a case of either/or, as quite often these media work very well together when used in support of each other!
